More on the Agenda

We have received many inquiries about the recent Arlington court decision regarding upzoning. In response, we have arranged the following for our members. Michele Rosenfeld, Esq., will review the 60+ page Complaint and other legal filings in the Arlington County case to determine what may be learned from the legal theories and the material facts from the public record offered by the plaintiffs in support of their claims. A written Court decision is expected on October 25, which will offer more insight into the basis for the Court's decision. In the meantime, Michele will provide a brief written summary of the Arlington case to MCCF members and be available at the October 14 meeting to answer questions.

This is an effort to provide additional education to our members. It should not be construed as a recommendation or move toward litigation.

It is important to remember that Virginia has different statutes and legal precedents than Maryland. ■

An Idea for Increasing the Supply of Naturally Occurring Affordable Housing Units in Montgomery County

By Jerry Garson, Treasurer

If the County Government is interested in increasing the supply of Naturally Occurring Affordable Housing (NOAH) units, there is a solution.

The County could give first preference for occupancy in new or existing available Moderately Priced Dwelling Units (MPDUs) to residents collecting Social Security and meeting the income requirements or have incomes below the income limits.

The seniors would have to own a single family house for at least 10 years (or a different number of years) and who would then sell their Naturally Occurring Affordable Housing house to individuals and not to developers. This would add to the supply of Naturally Occurring Affordable Housing units. Developers would usually demolish a house and build larger houses.

There are many older residents of Montgomery County who do not need a larger house since their children are no longer going to school in the County or living at home.

This can be done by setting the parameters for single residents or married couples who are both collecting Social Security with a minimum age of 62 and would like to move to less expensive housing.

You could also require that they have been primary residents of Montgomery County.

If the residents do not meet the minimum income levels, they would have the additional funds to pay rent from the proceeds of the sale of the house.

This would be a win-win for the County and the older residents. With COVID still occurring, many older residents are no longer interested in moving to senior housing, which they did in the past, but would be interested in moving into Moderately Priced Dwelling Units since their housing costs would decrease. ■

A Letter from the President

Dear MCCF delegates and members:

I wanted to take this opportunity to update our members on our activities since the June election, as well as our plans for the year. But first, I want to thank all of you who voted, and have reached out with ideas and recommendations for the upcoming months.

On Sept. 5, we sponsored a very successful symposium on the Attainable Housing Strategies Initiative. The event featured County Executive Marc Elrich, land use attorney Michele Rosenfeld, and Dr. Glenn Orlin, an expert on Growth and Infrastructure Policy. The event was attended by 315 residents and the video has been viewed nearly 700 times since then. If you couldn't attend, you can still view the video here.

Education is a key part of the MCCF mission, and we continue our efforts to provide the most up-to-date information and expert speakers so that our delegates are well informed resources in their communities. This month, we will hear from Michele Rosenfeld on how to understand the recent Arlington, Va., court decision on upzoning.

Mark your calendars for the November meeting. We have a date change due to Veteran's Day and will meet on Thursday, Nov. 14, at 7 p.m. We will focus on the upcoming state legislative session and will hear an overview of what to expect this session from our invited guests Senator Jeff Waldstreicher, Delegate Marc Korman, and Delegate Julie Palakovich Carr.

In December, we will focus on schools, and we will arrange for knowledgeable speakers in leadership to hear about school system challenges and plans. If you've got questions or suggestions about MCPS, mark your calendar for Dec. 9 and be sure to attend.

Our by-laws committee is working diligently to review and update our by-laws for membership consideration later this year.

The strength of our association and advocacy efforts comes from our membership. If you haven't renewed yet, please consider renewing your membership now. If you'd like to help us with membership recruitment, please let me know. We are always looking for volunteers.

Please feel free to get in touch anytime with questions or concerns. My email is president@montgomerycivic.org. —Cheryl Gannon ■

Remembering Dr. Charlotte A. Coffield

By Alan Bowser, Secretary

Montgomery County has lost one of its most accomplished and celebrated community activists, Dr. Charlotte A. Coffield, who passed away on September 11, 2024, in Silver Spring. Dr. Coffield was the President of the Lyttonville Community Civic Association, and a member of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, Inc., and the Presidents' Council of Silver Spring Civic Associations (PREZCO).

Dr. Coffield was a very effective advocate for neighborhoods and community engagement in Montgomery County. She played a major role in the Silver Spring Citizens Advisory Board in the early 2000s, and was a leader of the Talbot Avenue Bridge Centennial Committee, which works to foster racial reconciliation and understanding among the east Silver Spring communities of Lyttonville, Rosemary Hills, and North Woodside. She also led her community's engagement in the development of the Lyttonville Sector Plan and the planning and construction of the Purple Line.

Born on Juneteenth in 1933, Charlotte, the second of three children, was educated in a segregated two-room schoolhouse in Lyttonville, Maryland. There, one teacher and one principal taught dozens of students using outdated books, while well-funded schools for white children were less than a mile away. Lyttonville lacked paved roads and running water until the mid-1960s, forcing residents to cross the Talbot Avenue Bridge to access resources in

Despite facing systemic barriers, Charlotte—known as Annieperry—thrived in her close-knit community. Neighbors looked out for one another, sharing work, play, and worship at Pilgrim Baptist Church.

Charlotte's education continued in Washington, D.C., as she was unable to attend Montgomery County's Lincoln High School due to its distance. She attended Banneker Junior High and Cardozo High School, graduating before spending a year at the Marshall Professional and Social School in D.C.

After graduating, Charlotte began her career as a stenographer at the former U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW). Working in the Office of Deafness, she taught herself finger spelling to communicate with her Deaf supervisor, Boyce Williams, and later learned sign language at Gallaudet College and California State University, Northridge.

Over her 43-year federal career,

Charlotte witnessed significant societal transformations, including civil rights and disability rights legislation. Often the only woman and African American in policy discussions, she made impactful contributions, such as arranging the first transatlantic call for deaf individuals between HEW and a Deaf member of Parliament in London. She established a nationwide network of sign language contractors, ensuring deaf voices were included in policymaking.

Charlotte proudly attended the signing of the Americans with Disabilities Act in the White House Rose Garden in 1990. She rose from a Grade 3 stenographer to Acting Chief of her office before retiring in 1994, receiving an Honorary Doctorate of Laws from Gallaudet University for her advocacy and support of disability rights.

Despite her busy career, Charlotte remained devoted to her Lyttonsville community. She actively supported the local school and church, leading the Lyttonsville Community Civic Association to navigate critical issues like transportation, housing, and historic preservation.

Her dedication has earned her numerous accolades, including recognition for the Talbot Avenue Bridge Centennial Project, the Montgomery County Community Hero Award, Jamie Raskin's Hometown Hero Recognition, induction into the Montgomery County Hall of Fame of Civil Rights, and the prestigious Roscoe R. Nix Distinguished Community Leadership

Award from County Executive Marc Elrich. ■

Update on Pepco's Shared Use Path 'Powerline Trail'

By Peggy Dennis, Past President

The Montgomery County Civic Federation initiated the drive to get a shared use path for walkers, runners, and bicyclists along the Pepco transmission line from Westlake Drive in Bethesda out to the SoccerPlex in the western part of the county. This was a request that we were initially told would "never happen." The western trail has been open for several years now, but it is a "natural path" (mown grass) that is good mainly for mountain bikers but not for families or bike commuters.

Michael Zelaski from the Parks Department gives us this update: "We started with the trailheads because they are on Parks' property and were the quickest to get to construction. Work within Pepco property incurs an additional level of review by Pepco beyond the typical government agency reviews.

"The north trailhead [which is within Cabin John Regional Park, near the dog park, off Westlake] is designed, permits are in hand, and the bid documents are being prepared to provide to contractors for bidding. I anticipate this happening in September.

"The south trailhead, near Field 3, is in design and the permit process is in progress. Once permits are in hand, bid documents will be provided to contractors for bidding. This could also happen this year, but if we miss the paving season it may be pushed to after winter.

"The trail on Pepco property is under design and permitting from Westlake to Seven Locks. Several major hurdles must be negotiated within this area: crossing Cabin John Creek, crossing the associated floodplain, negotiating the very steep slopes between the creek and Seven Locks, and finding the best, accessible route through the wooded area near Seven Locks." ■

Metro Ridership Data

The Montgomery County Planning Department wants a large number of new high-rise apartment buildings near WMATA rail stations. The table below shows current ridership at WMATA stations in Montgomery County.

Saving Our Street Trees from Killer Vines

By Peggy Dennis, Transportation Committee Member

One year ago I presented our County Executive; his Chief of Staff, Dale Tibbitts; Christopher Conklin, Director of the Department of Transportation; and Brett Linkletter, office of DOT's Tree Management Program with the following presentation:

Save Our Street Trees.

My concern was reinforced by a three-minute piece on National Public Radio in January.

The NPR report also mentions the overpopulation of deer as a major contributor to a related problem: lack of forest regeneration. This is an issue that the Civic Federation has been working on for some years now. Working with our Annapolis delegation, we have gotten the laws on bow-and-arrow hunting in suburban neighborhoods greatly liberalized, allowing licensed archery hunters to cull the herds in many areas of the County.

Here's the good news. DOT has now established a working group to create a volunteer program to cut vines that are slowly but surely killing the trees in the public rights-of-way along our roads. It will take some time to hammer out a program that will attract enough volunteers to make a difference, but we're on the road to getting there.

In the meantime, a citizen-initiated group is already going after killer vines. "Tree Friends United" started a year ago with several people noticing how many trees were imperiled in Glen Echo Park. The Park readily agreed to having volunteers cut the vines, and the C&O

Robin Loube

Canal National Historic Park also agreed to let the volunteers do the same in the land between MacArthur Boulevard and the Canal. The group has grown to more than 140 volunteers, and progress is rapid with groups meeting every two weeks.

Tree Friends United is also participating in the DOT working group, giving much needed advice based on their first-hand experience. Learn more about this group on their website. ■
